ARMED BANDITS HOLDUP MASON FILLING STATION

$50 in Cash Stolen From Drawer By Young Men
Wednesday Evening

CAR ESCAPES ON ROUTE 22

Robbers Force Operator to Lie Face Down on Floor

Two bandits held up Elliott Mason, proprietor of a service station at Main and Washington streets, Wednesday night, and obtained about $50 in cash. They escaped driving east out of Circleville.

Mason told officers the bandits entered the filling station while he was locking a restroom door at the side of the building, preparing to close for the night.

As he entered the building one bandit, carrying a short-barreled nickel-plated pistol at his side, ordered him to lie on the floor, face downward. One of the men asked Mason where to find the key to the cash drawer and the proprietor told him it was in his pocket.

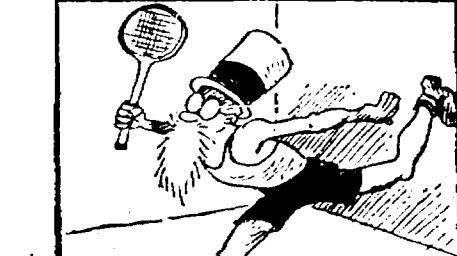

Telephone Unfashioned
While one of the robbers stood over Mason with the gun the other unlocked the drawer, removed the cash, then went to their auto, parked on S. Washington street at the rear of the station. The bandit standing guard over Mason jerked the telephone from the wall and ran to join his companion.

Mason said as the car was turning the corner east into Main street he jumped up to get his gun but was unable to shoot. Mrs. Asa Elisea happened to drive past the station shortly after the holdup and Mason asked her to drive east on Main street after the (Continued on Page Ten.)

He was rushed to Providence hospital, where he died without regaining consciousness.

WRONG VALVE TURNED, MOLASSES COVERS CARS, HOUSES AND STREETS

ATCHISON, Kan., Jan. 21 — (21) — When a molasses company employee noticed the pressure in a cooker was too high he excitedly turned a valve. It was the wrong one and the thick, sticky stuff went up a pipe to the roof. It settled over streets, cars and houses in a three block area.

COUNCIL CLAIMS MAYOR IGNORES PARKING LIMIT

Graham, Reporting No Fines,
Defends His Program
"Education"

Mayor W. J. Graham's alleged failure to enforce the limited parking ordinance brought complaints from several members of council Wednesday night.

"We pass an ordinance for the police department and mayor to enforce and the way it is at present people are beginning to laugh about it," Councilman Ben Gordon said. "If it is not going to be enforced we might as well take the signs down."

No Violator Fined

Mayor Graham told councilmen he had fined no one for overtime parking, but had been conducting an "educational" campaign. He contended approximately 90 per cent of the persons who had appeared before him for overtime parking were out-of-town motorists. "They have been warned about the regulation and none has appeared a second time," he said.

Councilman Harry Steinhilber suggested the mayor issue courtesy cards to store proprietors. He explained wholesale salesmen stopping in front of downtown stores to show merchandise have difficulty with the regulation. Other councilmen did not like the suggestion.

Steinhilber added he had heard many complaints about the failure to enforce the ordinance and believed it was time "to put the clamps on."

"It seems to me it should be enforced," John Goeller, president of council said, "especially on second offenders."

BLACK'S WHITE TERRIER NOW 23 YEARS OLD

"Toodles" may be a little too old to learn new tricks but he's still active at the ripe old age of 23 years.

"Toodles" unusual age was revealed Wednesday when C. L. Black, of 476 E. Franklin street, his owner, purchased a 1937 dog license.

The dog has been owned by the Blacks for the last 15 years. They said he was given to them by Mrs. Paul Stein and they considered him an "old dog" at that time.

"Toodles" is a white fox terrier and despite his age sees and hears fairly well. Damp weather recently has given him a slight touch of rheumatism. His new tag number is 1613 but neither the dog nor his master seemed to be superstitious about the 13.

COUNCIL GRANTS WISE MONTH TO MOTOR IN SOUTH

Fire Chief Talmer Wise was granted a month's leave of absence without pay by city council. Wise plans to leave next week on a trip south, probably to Florida. He said the date he would start his trip depended on flood conditions in southern states.

Clinton Strawser, fireman, was appointed acting chief Wednesday by Mayor W. J. Graham.

SAFETY COUNCIL ASKS ACTION TO HALT ACCIDENTS

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21 — (UP) — A bill providing for establishment of a motor vehicle safety bureau to which motorists would be required to report all accidents resulting in property damage or personal injury will be introduced in the legislature next week, the Ohio State Safety Council announced today.

The proposed measure, drawn up by the council's legislative committee and endorsed by safety and civic groups, would divide the state into districts, each headed by a divisional investigator.

A superintendent with a salary of $4,500 a year would direct the bureau's activities. He would work in cooperation with the director of highways, local police, and the state highway patrol.

The bureau would have authority to conduct investigations for the reduction of accidents, carry on safety educational campaigns and recommend means of eliminating highway hazards.

The bill also provides a fine of not more than $200 or imprisonment for a minimum of 90 days, or both, for failure to report within 24 hours an accident in which a person has been injured or property has been damaged to the extent of $25 or more.

ARMY ENGINEERS MOVING TRAPPED OFF RIVER ISLE

KENNETT, Mo., Jan. 21 — (UP) — Motorboats manned by army engineers churned through muddy flood waters today rescuing those marooned when the St. Francis river smashed through levees and flooded 100,000 acres of farming land.

A heavy rain hampered rescuers and added to the distress of the refugees who are in barns, on roofs of houses and bits of high ground, patiently awaiting the boat crews.

About 400 persons remained to be rescued when the boat crews left at dawn, according to army engineer headquarters here. Five hundred were removed from the flood area yesterday and last night. They were taken to Senath and here where Red Cross headquarters have been established.

Among those waiting rescuers were a small group on Allen's island, a strip of lowland six miles south of Senath. The island is almost covered by water and those on it are in desperate circumstances, being without food or fire.

Alcida Benoit Admits Shooting State Trooper After His Arrest for Station Robbery

MONROE, Mich., Jan. 21 — (UP) — Alcida (Frenchy) Benoit, accused of shooting to death State Trooper Richard Hammond, pleaded not guilty today when arraigned in municipal court on a charge of first degree murder.

MONROE, Mich., Jan. 21 — (UP) — State police, armed with machine guns, guarded the county jail today to protect Alcida (Frenchy) Benoit, 24-year-old parole violator, from public anger aroused by his brutal slaying of State Trooper Richard Hammond.

More than 2,000 men and women surrounded the jail after Benoit's capture last night, muttering threats against the surly gunman who fired one shot into Hammond's brain, then handcuffed his body to a rural mailbox.

The crowd had thinned out early today but police, were taking precautions to prevent any demonstration when Benoit is arraigned in municipal court later in the day on a first degree murder charge. More than 100 officers guarded the jail last night.

Body Found Manacled

The 25-year-old trooper's body was found early yesterday after Benoit, arrested as a suspect in a gasoline station robbery, had escaped in his radio patrol car. His arms had been forced behind his back against the mailbox post and his wrists had been manacled with the handcuffs he had carried on a ring suspended from his belt. He was in a half kneeling position. His .38-calibre service revolver was missing.

Benoit told police he was able to overpower the trooper because he had hidden his own .44-calibre gun between his legs when Hammond searched him after the gas station holdup.

"I got it out while he was driving me to jail and shot him," he told Sheriff Joseph J. Blairley. After disposing of the body, (Continued on Page Ten.)

Labor Secretary Declares
Fairness Sought

DETROIT, Jan. 21 — (UP) — Chrysler Corporation advised its 50,000 or more production workers today that all plants in four divisions would shut down tonight until Monday because of a shortage of glass.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 — (UP) — Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins strove today to bring John L. Lewis and Alfred P. Sloan together for a face to face conference in a supreme effort to end the General Motors strike.

Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, acting as intermediary for Miss Perkins, arranged separate meetings today with Lewis, who as head of the committee for Industrial Organization is generalissimo of the striking United Automobile Workers, and Sloan, G.M. President.

"Settled in East"

Murphy, who participated in conferences this week between the labor secretary and both groups, said he was convinced that the strike which has thrown 135,000 General Motors employees out of work "must be settled in the east."

Miss Perkins called General Motors executives to Washington after a joint conference arranged for last Monday in Detroit between them and strike leaders collapsed because General Motors Corporation refused to recognize UAW as the sole bargaining agent of its employees.

After the conference Miss Perkins issued a statement saying all aspects of the strike problem, particularly breaking off of the plan of negotiations, and the causes leading to it, were discussed.

"Gov. Murphy and I are striving to bring about a reopening of negotiations on fair and honorable terms that will assure proper and mutually satisfactory settlement," she said.

ACE TO ATTEMPT STRATOSPHERE OCEAN FLIGHT

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 21 — (UP) — Col. Charles Chamberlain, who followed Lindbergh across the Atlantic 10 years ago, revealed today that he is planning a trans-Atlantic stratosphere flight within two months, and that his wife might accompany him.

He believes a trip to London or Paris would take between 12 and 15 hours, flying at an altitude of from 35,000 to 40,000 feet. He and his wife plan to wear electrically heated suits and oxygen masks to resist temperatures of from 60 to 70 degrees below zero and the rarified atmosphere.

Chamberlain plans to use a Lockheed special plane, christened Miss Stratosphere, now at Kansas City. He said he would take off from New York.

CALDWELL NEW PRESIDENT OF COUNTRY CLUB

Felix R. Caldwell, S. Court street, was elected Wednesday evening as the new president of the Pickaway Country Club. He succeeds Dr. G. D. Phillips, who has served during the last two years. The election took place at the annual meeting of Country Club stockholders.

John W. Eshelman Jr., was named vice president, and Claude D. Kraft was chosen secretary to succeed Clark Will, who has held the position since the club was organized. Mr. Will was made a trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of George Weller.

Other trustees elected were Tom Brunner, Mr. Eshelman, and Charles T. Mason, R. D. Musser, Dr. Phillips, and Mr. Caldwell. Charles G. Shulze, whose term as a trustee ended, was named an honorary trustee for life. An intensive membership contest will be conducted in the spring.

SANFORD BATES QUITS AS CHIEF OF U. S. PRISONS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 — (UP) — Sanford Bates, director of federal prisons, resigned today.

Bates' resignation came as a surprise. His post is one of the major offices in the department of justice.

Bates' views on prison parole and pardons several times have come in conflict with those of J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Hoover has been extremely critical of parole methods—especially those followed by the states. Bates, on the other hand, has been a strong supporter of parole systems.

TWO ARRESTED, PART OF STOLEN PROPERTY FOUND

Looting of six southend garages Monday night appeared near solution Thursday when city and county officers announced two men, one 44 and the other 19 years of age, were being held for questioning and a large part of the loot had been recovered.

The men were arrested Wednesday night by Police Chief William McCrady, Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Earl Weaver. One was residing between Chillicothe and Clarksburg, the officers reported, and the other was apprehended near Sedalia. Both formerly lived in Circleville, they said, one in the southend of the city and the other in the north-end. One was being held in the city jail and the other in the county jail. Names of the men were not revealed by the officers who explained they planned to question the suspects during the day.

The loot recovered, officers said, included four tires, a generator, 10 quarts of oil and tools.

Garages looted Monday night were those of Fred Smith, George Iles and Chester Starkey, Logan street; James Cook, S. Pickaway street.

The officers said they were near Sedalia when they received the report of the state highway patrol broadcasting system Mason's filling station had been robbed.

MADRID, Jan. 21 — (UP) — The Spanish civil war in its first six months has cost the lives of 1,000,000 Spaniards and may cost 1,000,000 more if it continues another six months. Manuel De Irujo, minister without portfolio, said in a signed statement today.

The statement was published in the newspaper La Libertad as an appeal to all political factions to forget their differences and unite for peace and the creation of a "democratic" republic.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 21 — (UP) — The Little Miami river, backed up by the Ohio, rushed over the levee east of here today inundating Lunken airport and blocking all air transportation from Cincinnati. The entire eastern section of the county was isolated.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 21 — (UP) — A sudden rise in the lower Ohio river today, due to persistent rains, sent estimates of flood damage in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky as high as $5,000,000.

The rampant river had driven approximately 10,000 families from their homes ahead of flood waters even higher than those of last spring. The Red Cross and other relief agencies received several calls hourly. All refugees were well cared for.

No Drownings Reported

Loss of life from the flood has been negligible because of the preparation made by those in both tom lands, who have been kept informed of each new danger by government observers. No drownings have been reported for several days.

U. S. Meteorologist W. H. Alexander said January rainfall in the Ohio valley up to today has been about 6.54 inches — almost three times normal precipitation for the month. Most of the rainfall has (Continued on Page Ten.)

RIVER EXPECTED TO COVER RT. 22 FOR THIRD TIME

Heavy rains throughout the Scioto river valley Wednesday night were expected to send flood waters over Route 22, just west of Circleville, for the third time Thursday night.

Streams of the county were rising Thursday, but officials expected no serious damage from flood waters.

Rainfall in the 24 hours previous to 7 a. m. Thursday amounted to 1.75 inches boosting the total rain this month to nearly eight inches.

Wednesday night the Scioto receded from Route 22, dropping to about two feet below the road level. At 1 p. m. Thursday highway department employees said the water was within one-foot of the road. They expect it to be inundated before night.

The highway department was notified by the district office at Delaware Thursday morning that the Scioto in that district was rising from heavy rains and a further rise could be expected Thursday night.

Routes 22 and 104 remained closed to traffic Thursday with a few being maintained through detour. Although heavy rains were not over 100 at many places, washouts caused by the streamers last week kept the roads closed because of continued rain.

of Pneumonia

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Mrs. Dorothy Ward required medical treatment, Wednesday, when a kettle of boiling water was accidentally turned over in the kitchen of the Lutheran church annex during the meal hour at the Institute program.

Attended the Institute Wednesday and very much pleased with what we saw and heard. Mr. Stowe, a native of Marion, told us he has been in the Institute work as a speaker for thirteen years. Mr. Schmidt, the other speaker, dealt considerably with statistics, but presented in such form that you liked it. In his talk he referred to seeing the great marching bodies of men in the pre-election campaign of President Harding. He evidently could have told us of the sad ending of a president who trusted those whom he thought were his friends. Both speakers, to us, were interesting. The Melody Makers are, and have a right to be proud of their musical organization. Those dozens and dozens of people who for some reason did not attend the Institute, missed a lot. The door prizes were awarded to Mrs. Chauncey McCord and Ralph Stevenson. The Resolution committee is Mayor Margulis, S. M. Smith and Fred Barthlemas. Nominating committee, Ira Fisher, Frank Jinks, Mrs. John Sark. In the Junior corn show, George and William Wharton won first and second prizes. In the Senior show, Frank Hudson won first on hybrid corn. In yellow corn class, Milt Beatty first, Frank Hudson, second.

Pop corn, Harold Cummins first, Beers Bros., second. Yellow corn sweepstakes, Milton Beatty.

In the Food Show exhibits, there were candy, cakes, bread, eggs potatoes. The judging here was not completed and awards not made.

"The What Have You" amateur contest Wednesday night, was a great success, there being twenty-one entries. The attendance was a "jammed house". Shirley Temple is an artist but our tots did amazingly well, and did they please! This amateur contest has proven that Pickaway County has an abundance of entertainers who actually can put on an interesting program.

County Supt. of schools played the part of Major Bowes and did an excellent job of it.

The Lutheran ladies' chicken dinner, noon and evening, was "just splendid" in all, quantity, quality, service. Patronage, good. Next installment for additional prize winners, talks, resolutions, new officers.

Crooked Rows Best

"All we modern and up-to-date farmers have learned that more corn and potatoes grow in a crooked row than a straight one," said Ward B. Powell graduated in Postal Service and on the Uncle Sam retired list. Ward, you know, was one of Postmaster Henry Snyder's reliables and gave the people in over-river territory the kind of service they liked. But they are both farmers now. Ward specializing in potatoes and he says "believe it or not" it is a fact that he grew this last season, 95 bushels of fine Carmans from 5 bushels of planted seed, and mighty good ones, too. With both Henry and Ward on the farm, growing stuff, none of us will need go hungry.

Yet so many things that oldsters do would seem dumb if done by kids of 18.

1937 PAYMENT RATES FOR SOIL IMPROVEMENT IN OHIO ARE DISCLOSED

KRUSE, LEADER OF STATE BOARD, QUOTES FIGURES

Stand to Survive Winter to Decide Amount to be Paid for Legume Seeding

MANY DETAILS INCLUDED

Use of Fertilizers May Add to Farmers' Checks

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21 — Soil improvement practices for which payment will be made to Ohio farmers in 1937 by the agricultural adjustment administration are announced by Elmer F. Kruse, chairman, state committee, as covering most of the recommendations made to Washington authorities by farmers of this state.

These payments will be another incentive for the use of farming practices which tend to increase the productivity of the soil. H. C. Ramsower, director of the Extension Service, Ohio State University, says these means of improving the soil for which payment is offered, are practices which have the recommendation of the extension service.

Seedings Valued

Payments for legume seedings are made on the basis of the farmer securing a stand which will survive the winter. The amounts offered in Ohio for these seedings are alfalfa, $2.50 per acre; red clover, sericea, and white clover, $2 per acre; alsike, mammoth clover, and lespedeza, $1.50 an acre, and legume mixtures containing 50 per cent of any of those named, $1.50 per acre. Seedings of biennial sweet clover, annual sweet clover, vetch, crimson clover, or mixtures with 50 per cent of these are paid at the rate of $1 per acre.

Seedings of grass on cropland or non-crop pasture land also qualify. Ohio farmers for payments of $2 per acre where bluegrass or wheat grasses are seeded and $1.50 per acre if seedings are made with brome grass or orchard grass or a mixture of grasses that contains 50 per cent of bluegrass or the wheat grasses. Redtop, Reed canary grass, timothy, and mixtures containing 50 per cent of any of the varieties named except bluegrass and wheat grasses qualify for $1 per acre payments.

Liming Payments

Payments for liming are divided in three classes, first, $1.25 per acre for applications of ground limestone or its equivalent on crop land or non-crop pasture land; second, $1 per acre for applying 500 pounds or more of finely ground limestone on crop land when drilled with new seedings, and third, $2 per acre for 1,000 pounds or more on non-crop pasture land.

Payments also can be earned by use of fertilizers. The rates announced by Mr. Kruse are $1.20 per acre for 200 pounds of 16 per cent superphosphate or its equivalent; $1.80 for the use of 300 pounds of rock phosphate or basic slag; and $1 for each acre treated with 100 pounds of 50 per cent muriate of potash or its equivalent.

The forestry practices for which payment will be made are planting and protecting forest trees for windbreaks, $7.50 per acre, and improving stands in accordance with requirements, $2.50 per acre. The payment of 40 cents per hundred feet for the construction of terraces will not be important in Ohio. Owners who keep livestock from non-crop plowable pasture land under certain conditions will receive 40 cents per acre.

Horticulturists, Too

Payments of special interest to horticulturists are $1 per acre for dicing in winter cover crops, 50 cent per acre for seeding winter cover crops, $1.50 per acre for seeding soybeans and cowpeas, and $1 per acre for applying mulching materials other than manure. Payments will be made to vegetable growers for plowing down certain green manure crops if certain conditions are met. These payments range from $1 to $4 per acre.

Mr. Kruse states that all these payments are based on the compliance of farmers with the intent of the agricultural conservation act and with its regulations.

and 47.7 in New York City that same month, according to H. H. Varney, rural economics department, Ohio State University.

Farmers received the seemingly low price because the majority of them prefer to sell their eggs at a flat rate per dozen without the eggs being graded by the buyer. Nearly nine out of every ten Ohio farmers keep a flock of hens, the average number being 87 birds per farm. A large proportion of the eggs and meat from the small flocks is consumed on the farm.

However, each of the farms produces some surplus eggs during the year and these are sold. The quantity available for sale is not large enough to encourage the farmer to grade the eggs or to make any extra effort to market them. They are sold to local buyers at the prevailing price. When all these few-dozen lots are assembled, they make a huge total which the egg buyer must get to the consumer.

The buyer now becomes a seller and he has to meet the conditions prevailing or his eggs will cost him money instead of procuring him a profit. Ohio consumers eat more eggs than are produced in the state but a market survey in Cleveland proved that only a little more than half the eggs used in that city were produced in Ohio. Eggs from the Pacific coast are sold in many Ohio cities.

Mr. Varney says that Ohio is known in other states as a good market for flock-run eggs, which means that housewives buy eggs by numbers and not by quality. Both farmers and housewives are not familiar with egg grades so the one prefers to sell and the other to buy without having the eggs graded.

PERENNIALS MAY BE GROWN FROM SEEDS IN YEAR

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21. — Those who do not wish to go to the expense of buying perennials can raise many excellent ones from seed, if they are willing to wait an extra year to get their flowers, according to Victor H. Ries, specialist in floriculture, Ohio State University.

Basket of gold, or hardy Alyssum, with its bright yellow flowers and gray-green foliage is a welcome addition to the spring garden. The Anchusa, either the tall Italica variety or the dwarf forget-me-not flowered variety, are easily grown. Any one can grow the anemone, or false camomile, with its yellow daisy-like flowers. In fact, it sometimes is a problem to keep it from growing.

Rock cress, both in white and purple flowered forms, with their early spring bloom, are easy to germinate and easy to grow. Columbine, although sometimes considered difficult because of their slow germination, will, if kept moist for three or four weeks seldom fail to germinate. The long spurred varieties and the new Crimson Star are common favorites.

The false indigo, or baptisia although easily raised, is one of the most permanent perennials for any garden. Many of the campanulas, or bellflowers, such as the Carpathian, the Chimney Bellflower, or the Peach Bellflower should be included in the seed order. The hardy cornflowers, the coreopsis, are both sure bloomers. Delphiniums are not difficult to raise from seed, if the seed is fresh.

O.S.U. MEN AID SCOUTERS OPEN COUNTY COURSE

Dean Nisonger to Appear At Sessions Planned Thursday Evenings

FIRST AT 7:30 TONIGHT

All Persons Interested in Work Are Welcome

Ohio State university officials would cooperate with the Central Ohio Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, in the Pickaway district leadership training course which begins tonight at 7:30 in Memorial Hall. Dean Herschel Nisonger, head of the adult education department of O.S.U., who is chairman of the council leadership training committee, has volunteered to appear at one of the sessions, in addition to his work in assisting in the preparation of the content of the local course.

Dean Nisonger has been assisting regularly in the University of Scouting being held each Tuesday evening in the Horticulture and Forestry Building on the O.S.U. campus. Several courses, running simultaneously, were started Nov. 17 and will be concluded this month.

Others Have Part Other members of the council training committee who are interested in the Circleville course are W. C. Batchelor, professor of group work, and Howard Hamilton, secretary of the College of Arts Sciences, both of Ohio State university.

Special speakers will be obtained for each session of the training course, according to Robert Terhune, Pickaway district commissioner, who is in charge of the course. Included among these will be Robert H. Helstead, executive of the Central Ohio Area Council, and volunteer scouters of Columbus and Lancaster. Other men prominent in the field of secondary education and boy leadership will constitute the faculty. Arrangements are in charge of Howard Kautz, field executive, who is cooperating with Terhune.

The local training course is a part of the program to further develop and extend Boy Scout work in Circleville and Pickaway county by the recently formed district committee, headed by James I. Smith, Jr., as chairman.

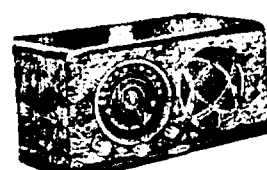

First for Public This is the first public activity sponsored by the group. Smith declared that the course is open free of charge to all men 18 years of age or over. Men do not need to be affiliated with the Scout organization to participate, nor does attendance involve service to scouting. Particular emphasis has been placed on the opportunity for fathers, teachers, Sunday school workers, and others interested in boys to receive helpful information by attending this course.

Plastic Furniture Forecast TOLEDO (UP) — The color possibilities of plastic furniture soon may attract interior decorators. This is the belief of H. D. Bennett, who has fostered the development of "plaskon". Furniture, he predicts, will be the next field in which the plastic material is used.

Home Economics

Designing dresses using lines and designs most pleasing to their own figure was the work just finished by the sophomores home economics girls. This unit on design was presented as a study of lettering and the use of lines, shapes and colors, naturalistic and conventional pattern in design were studied as they were related to their use in dress fabrics. Individual problems of being round shouldered, having one shoulder higher than the other and being sway-backed, were discussed and the remedy in dress design suggested. The correct and incorrect use of make up as well as the correct dress for certain occasions was chosen.

Learning to be likeable is the thought being discussed by the Freshman girls as a part of their unit on charm. Each student has been analyzing the characteristics of her girl friends that make them more acceptable to her. The story of her home life and three problems that confront her as an individual person in her home were discussed and studied from the standpoint of learning to be a better friend. Readings concerning friendship, manners and personality are being studied and discussed with special individual problems receiving attention. The duties of a hostess is the next discussion problem.

Fighting winter — and licking it!

HOMES are warm, families are fed, factories keep running even in the dead of winter, because the American railroads — whatever the weather — see that the freight goes through:

These dependable carriers have a grave responsibility to meet, for countless communities vitally depend for food, fuel, industrial materials and medical attention upon the sure arrival of the train

And the way that railroad men buckle into the job — their resourcefulness, their fidelity and fortitude in overcoming every obstacle — constitutes one of the most dramatic peace-time battles of modern times.

Remember last winter, when for days vast areas of the United States were held in the frigid grasp of the coldest weather of years. And transportation by highway, waterway and airway, was virtually paralyzed. But there was one — and only one — transportation agency that could and did meet the emergency — the railroads. (In last winter's blizzard not one Norfolk and Western passenger train, not one freight train was cancelled.)

The railroads are continually demonstrating their dependability, their adequacy and their ability to meet efficiently the extraordinary demands made upon them in any and all kinds of weather. They prove their supremacy in the field of transportation.

When shaping your policy toward transportation matters, remember the old maxim that "a friend in need is a friend indeed." The railroads serve you 365 days of the year, they are not merely "fair-weather" friends. You can always count on them.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT proved to the nation again, Wednesday, that he is one of the greatest humanitarians of all time. His acceptance address, which thousands stood in a steady downpour to hear and many thousands more listened to over the radio, can be marked as one of his many jewels. It struck a responsive chord throughout the country, and today seemed to be instilling a new feeling of optimism in the future of our great nation.

His statement:

"Four years of experience hold out the clear hope that government within communities, government within the separate states, and government of the United States can do the things the times require, without yielding its democracy." It is evidence in itself that the president has confidence in the future, and feels certain the United States is going ahead. "Our progress out of the depression is obvious," he declared, and every available bit of evidence supports his statement. His assertion that the New Deal would go forward to assist the many underprivileged was greeted with open arms. It is true he plans to try to balance the budget, at least in the next two years, and to do this it is necessary to reduce some of the expenditures made necessary by the grave emergency faced four years ago. Relief must continue, the president believes, and he has pledged himself to see that every person who is in need receives his share of the world's goods.

The progress made in his administration toward perpetuating world peace, especially on our side of the Atlantic, is evident without discussion. His activities toward good feeling between nations are known to all Americans.

His words assuring assistance for the underprivileged will probably never be forgotten. He proposed to use the materials of social justice to "erect on the old foundations a more enduring structure for the better use of future generations" through the materials of social justice. "We are beginning," he declared, "to abandon our tolerance of the abuse of power by those who betray for profit the elementary necessities of life. We are fashioning an instrument of unimagined power for the establishment of a morally better nation."

What a difference there is between today, Jan. 21, 1937, and the March four years ago when Franklin Roosevelt took office?

BRITISH FAITH IN ROYALTY SHAKEN

LONDON—The big story in London right now is the drive to build up George VI from a mediocre and none-too-brilliant young man to the glamorous ruler of the British Empire.

Behind this is the fact that for the first time in years the faith of the British people in the Crown has been shaken profoundly. Their monarch, once held up to them as a sacred symbol, is now revealed as subject to all the human frailties, possibly more frail than some other humans.

To the little group of aristocrats, the ruling class in Britain this approaches tragedy. Suddenly they looked over the precipice to see the possibility of their system, their fol-de-rol and court trappings, their right to New Year's honors and assured incomes, slipping beneath them.

EDWARD TABOO

Result is that in England today the name of Edward VIII is almost taboo. In the side streets of London you may hear small boys singing:

"Hark the herald angels sing,

Mrs. Simpson pinched our King."

But aside from this, Edward VIII is as dead as William the Conqueror, as far as England is concerned.

The press of Europe may be besieging the ex-king at the gates of the Rothschild estate, Mrs. Simpson may be threatening law suits against her newspaper biographers, the Continent may be speculating regarding the matrimonial intentions of the Duke—but in England there is grim and frigid silence.

Correct circles in England have put out the idea that Edward was a weakling who did not play the game, and the British public has turned on its idol.

GEORGE VI

However, building up George VI to be a grand and glorious King of England is a harder job than the British aristocracy reckoned with.

As Duke of York, George was never popular. People made no secret about it. They considered him a dumbbell.

Worse than that, he was hen-pecked. He married a woman who is an aristocrat of the aristocrats, whose father at first objected to the marriage because he considered it a come-down for his family. The father, Bowes-Lyon, not only heads the oldest family in Scotland but is the Toriest Tory in the United Kingdom. He believes that change is akin to evil. And his daughter, who inherits her father's conservatism, completely dominates the new King of England.

The British ruling classes are making the best of a bad job. So far they have done fairly well. They are painting George VI as the perfect constitutional monarch, the image of his father. Stories, photographs, new hints constantly are being fed out to the press that George is safe, sane, solid, always to be depended upon, sure to obey the beck and call of Parliament and what is more important of the little group of aristocrats who really rule England.

George VI will spend his life laying cornerstones and making speeches carefully prepared for him in advance—and that is all.

troublesome Indians and laid the basis of a brilliant military career.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Between the secretary of state and the state department Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota draws a significant distinction.

As chairman of the committee which, in recent months, has been investigating the causes calculated to involve the United States in foreign wars that Uncle Samuel has no good reason to be dragged into, the senator naturally is deeply concerned as to pending neutrality legislation.

A neutrality law already exists and it recently was supplemented by a congressional resolution to prevent the shipment to Spain of war supplies which the original law was not sufficiently airtight to embargo. The basic law, however, was temporary in its character. It requires re-enactment in permanent, strengthened form. The fight over it will be an important one at the current session in Capitol Hill.

as strong on this side of the water.

"Well, it is," said the senator.

"For example, we had a couple of shipments of war supplies destined to the Spanish anti-Fascists. They were blocked, in most part, by the publicity given to them by the state department."

"You wouldn't have let them go, would you?" I asked.

"No," said the Dakotan, "but they would have gone, insofar as the state department was concerned, if they had been consigned to the Fascists."

WHAT INFLUENCES

Who, then, influenced the state department?

"We can't very well have an independent foreign policy," replied the senator, "so long as our state department is dominated by the British government."

But Britain is supposed to have been friendly to the Spanish anti-Fascists.

"Britain is opposed," said the senator, "to any long-time American policy which might keep us from helping John Bull in an emergency. It cannot afford Yankee neutrality legislation which may fit John Bull's case when he needs Uncle Sam to assist him."

SECRETARY HELPLESS

Then Secretary of State Cordell Hull is pro-English?

"I do not say so," said the senator.

"I do not say that he is prejudiced or that any of his predecessors were or that any of his successors will be."

"I speak only of the state department's permanent organization."

A NEUTRAL LEAGUE

Suppose the 21 American republics should unite to keep out of old world wars?

"The difficulty is," pointed out Senator Nye, "that some of them are affiliated with the League of Nations. Still," he admitted, "they might disassociate themselves from it."

"If so, it would be a wonderful league of neutrality."

The nub of it is:

"The old world is trying to pull all of its future wars into the new world. The new world is trying to keep out of them."

CHAPTER I

"DEARLY beloved, we are gathered here in the sight of God and in the face of this company to join together..."

Janet's eyes lifted from the white head bent over the book. Her vision, synchronized with the tumultuous beating of her heart, wavered so that for an instant the chime dogs on the mantel back of the white head seemed to rise and settle. She was aware, as in a dream, of the echo of the music of the old-fashioned organ expiring on the air. Outdoors she heard the passing of a heavy motor on the country road, the distant barking of a dog, the shifting of feet at her back.

"... this man and woman in holy matrimony..."

She turned her head ever so slightly and saw Joel standing straight and solemn at her side. He was framed by the room that seemed smaller with his tall gauntness. The light streaming through lace curtains lent a nobility to his head. It pointed up the clean shabbiness of the worn carpet where so many other couples had stood like these two. It showed the careful darning in the linen dollies on the plush chairs, the fading colors of the yellowing wallpaper.

Janet thought: this is my background. Joel doesn't belong here. I can smell bread baking. I've known that smell all my life. I was brought up in a home like this and I thought that one day I would end it in just such a home. But this is not for Joel. Oh, Lord, make me a good wife, the right wife for him!

"... and, is commended by Saint Paul to be honorable among all men; and therefore is not by anyone to be entered into unadvisedly or lightly."

Martha Colby, standing at Janet's left, cleared her throat. The sound in that room, silent save for the soft, old voice speaking so slowly, sounded harsh. She dropped her eyes.

As though Martha had spoken, Janet protested within herself: We are not entering into it lightly. We loved each other from the moment we met. Time doesn't matter.

Martha thought: It's the most unadvised thing I've ever heard of. Who'd ever think that those two would fall in love? Janet, you should have better than this! A sane, sweet child marrying a stranger. He's a temperamental, second-rate actor. What would your Scotch father think of this?

Martha thought of little Dr. MacLeod, as she had been thinking of him since Janet had called her on the telephone the day before. There had been something singing in Janet's voice then: "Martha, I want you to stand up with me tomorrow. I'm going to marry Joel Paynter. Reverend Fisher is going to marry us at his home in Chester. ... No, you're not dreaming, it's true! ... Yes, he's the boy I met two weeks ago but I know it's right, Martha. ... Will you?"

"If any man can show just cause why they may not be lawfully joined together, let him now speak, or else hereafter forever hold his peace," the minister intoned.

The faintest smile played momentarily at the corners of Janet's mouth.

Almost the first words Joel had said to her were, "I'm not a marrying man." Before that he had said, "I don't know your name but I've struggled through this jam to get across to you ever since you came in. Do you care to buy music for this party or will you get your things and leave with me? I want to talk to you."

Janet had obtained her things and when they were in the park, driving from the Taylors' cocktail party, they hardly spoke. Yet between them there was a quickened sense of understanding.

Joel took her sensible little hand in his big one and looked into her face. Janet wished then that it were a pretty face. Just as she sometimes wished that she were tall. "I'm a half-pint and plain," she labeled herself. Her five feet of small proportioned perfection and her face that was distinguished by a broad brow, by deep gray eyes and a wide, generous mouth. If her cheekbones were high and her nose as Scotch as heather, her soft light brown hair broke away from its smooth tightness to curl softly about her forehead and cheeks.

Joel stood straight and solemn at her side.

"I'm not a marrying man," he said suddenly and surprisingly. "Does it matter?" she said.

"I'm afraid it might," he had answered.

That had been only a fortnight before. Janet thought: It can't have been so little time ago. I've lived a lifetime in these two weeks. I've known what it is to be in love, to have known the fear of losing him and to realize that I can never be happy without him.

After a week he had said, "I can't stand this, Janet. I'm not going to see you again. I love you and I want you. I want you, do you understand?"

He had said other inarticulate things and because she was afraid that she could not withstand them, she said she thought it best for him not to see her again.

But nothing could keep Joel Paynter from Janet MacLeod once he had kissed her. "You know how I feel about marriage," he said four days later. "I revolt against ties. I hate the whole idea of possession. I am depressed by the very word 'husband'! But I... oh, Janet, I have nothing but an uncertain future and my love to offer you. I need you and I want you to marry me at once."

"And forsaking all others, keep thee only unto her, so long as ye both shall live."

"I will," Joel said clearly.

Then Janet said, "I will."

"Who giveth this woman..."

Her brother, Ian, stepped forward. Janet raised her hand and the minister laid it in Joel's.

The cold circlet slipped over her finger. She felt far removed as the next words came to her.

"... she who wears it may abide in Thy peace."

Then Joel's arms were around her, lifting her from the floor to meet his kiss. Her fur toque was knocked askew by Ted Jevens claiming first privilege of kissing the bride. Mrs. Fisher was talking to her. Joel was shaking hands with the minister.

Martha shook confetti on her saying, "I'll take a week to get this stuff off but we only get married a few times during the course of a lifetime." Her tone was gay enough but her cheeks were wet. She stroked the tiny mint collar of Janet's new green suit. Foolishly she remembered doing something like that to Janet 20 years before. It had been an angors bonnet.

Mrs. Fisher came in with a tray of wine-filled glasses. Janet stood very proudly by Joel's side while they were toasted. Then Joel gave her a signal and she fled with him to the borrowed roadster waiting at the door.

He swung off the road suddenly and quietly the car came to a stop. "We'll wait here back of the pines until the rest of them have gone on. I haven't much time and I'm not going to share my bride. We'll only have an hour, ending before I have to go to the theater."

"Not I, Joel. It's we now. Am I not going to the theater?"

"You may. You are free to do anything you want all your life. Remember that, Mrs. Paynter, you are always free."

"Joel I don't want to be free this minute. I want you... I want to feel like a wife."

Joel's answer was very solemn. "Janet, I don't want you to feel like a wife. I only want you to be my sweetheart. Always."

"All right, darling," she laughed softly. "Shall we have dates after the theater and lunch during the week? You'll have your career and I'll have my job and we'll visit each other at our apartments?"

He regarded her sternly. "No, indeed! You're moving into my place tonight and quitting your job tomorrow. No career for you."

Janet thought of her pleasant two-room apartment, of Joel's dark little room "near the theater." She thought of her steady salary as assistant furniture buyer at the department store and how hard she had worked to attain that position, and her plans for the future.

She said, "Whither thou goest, Joel." But she thought, I didn't expect this. Joel's ideas of marriage were modern, why isn't he liberal about my job?

She sighed a very small sigh, thinking how little she really knew of this boy she had married.

DIET AND HEALTH

Heat Used in Treatment of Numerous Diseases

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
IF YOU happen to have a fever from the "flu" that is prevalent these days, don't kick about it too much. It may cure you of a lot of things that have been bothering.

Fever is induced for the treatment of many conditions nowadays, and although the treatment has been in fashion only about five years, it is by no means new. In a well-known magazine, not long ago it was stated that Hippocrates, the father of medicine, had written that if he could induce fever, he could cure anything. The saying does not occur in the writings of Hippocrates, but an eminent classical philologist and medical historian of my acquaintance spotted it in the Greek text of Oribasius, another medical father, who wrote about two thousand years ago. It certainly seems like a prophecy of the very latest medical treatment to read, "If I could use heat and fever, I would not need any other form of treatment."

A method of treatment of mental fancies by heat was used by Matthias Greuter, who lived about 1600. He has pictures of these patients with the head enclosed in an oven. Above, in the steam, are issuing the fancies which made him crazy—women, and horses, and cards, and dice, and musical instruments, and bottles of wine—very much the same causes that operate today. Considering that one of the diseases that heat is most successful in today is paresis, in which the patient is actually maniacal, it may well be that old Dr. Greuter anticipated one of our modern triumphs.

"Approach you, whose head is full of whims," the doctor's advertisement reads. "Convince yourself from this, learned physicians, that your troubles will soon cease, that in this oven in short time there will be relief for many torments."

Give Malaria Inoculation

When the present wave of fever treatment started, the method of inducing fever was to inoculate the patient with malaria. This caused a fever of as high as 105 every day for several days, and then the malaria was cured with quinine.

Less debilitating methods are in use today in the form of cabinets in which the entire body, except the head, is placed, and heat induced so that the temperature of the body rises to 102 or 103. This lasts for an hour or two, the cooling off process being gradual.

One of my colleagues has found that even an ordinary hot bath is a fever inducer. The water can be raised in temperature as high as 125 degrees F.

The treatment is used for arthritis, chronic infections, paresis, alcoholism and several other conditions. I have before me the report of the treatment of ozena of the nose by local heat. A thin walled rubber applicator is put into the nose. It has no shape, but when ballooned fits into the crevices of the nose, conforming to the shape of the space it fills. A solution circulating through this at high temperatures raises the temperature of the mucous membrane of the nose to 102 or more. In several patients the odor disappeared and the patients were markedly improved.

P-T-A. Play The Walnut township school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Mary Ruth Tolbert, will furnish the music for the Parent-Teacher association play, to be given in the auditorium, Jan. 28, at 8 o'clock.

The play, "Be an Optimist", is a farce in three acts. The story opens with Jimmie Maynard, played by Joseph Peters, getting a position in the antique shop of Isaac Golditch, played by C. D. Bennett. Jimmie wants a chance to speak to Mrs. Clinton, an antique hunter, who strongly opposes his engagement to her daughter.

The part of Mrs. Clinton is played by Mrs. A. C. Noecker, and the part of the daughter by Olive Grimm. Jimmie sells Mrs. Clinton a mummy for a masquerade ball which she is giving, but before the mummy is delivered, it is damaged beyond repair.

So Jimmie makes a deal with Isaac to be a "live mummy" for a day for $200. As a "mummy", he is sent to Mrs. Clinton's home and encounters many difficulties trying to exist without food and water for 24 hours.

His pal, played by Judson Lanman, comes to his aid at times, but at other times does not prove so helpful. What Jimmie finds out about his fiancée, how he proves that Madame Goopher can get real messages from the spirits, and how he finally wins his case provide amusing entertainment for the evening.

Other members of the cast are Mrs. Francis Bowne, Mrs. Wilbur Griffith, Mrs. Russell Hedges, Miss Helen Bowers, Miss Ruth Andrews, Ben Nothstine, Homer Reber and Ray Plum. The play is being directed by Miss Nellie M. Oesterle assisted by Mrs. Homer Reber.

AT THE CLIFTONA How public opinion, running high due to an element of mob psychology, may influence testimony of witnesses when a man's life hangs in the balance, is sensationally revealed in the current prison drama, "We Who Are About to Die," coming Friday and Saturday to the Cliftona Theatre.

Although the story is neither a defense nor an indictment of capital punishment, it vividly shows how misguided testimony and circumstantial evidence, combined with a politically-pointed prosecuting machine, can doom a man to eternity.

The Tigers have now fallen before Bexley, Grandview and Marysville. Westerville, coached by Mack Barr, Wittenberg grad,

'Ringer' May Be Permitted to Run

THIS bay filly, Blue Boot, five-year-old, is causing quite an uproar at the Santa Anita race track, Arcadia, Cal. The horse, entered in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap in February by her trainer, Earl Beezley, has been revealed as Exotude, and has won three races in Kansas City and one at Longacres, Seattle, under the name of Blue Boot. Beezley unsuspectingly claimed the mare for $2,000 in Seattle last summer under the name of Blue Root and it has been entered under that name for the handicap. The board of stewards, going into a huddle, was expected to allow the horse to compete for the $100,000 prize under its own name.

comes here Friday evening for a CBL fray on the CAC court.

Marysville started on the right foot, and at a killing pace in the first period which ended 13-7. The half found the score 26-9 and the third period 45-13.

Coach Jack Landrum tried to improve his team by sending Henry to forward with Kenny Smith, putting Jackson at center, and Weldon and Fickard at the guards. Several other combinations were tried, but they were not successful.

Weidman, Marysville captain, did most of his team's scoring with 15 markers beside his name. Henry scored eight for the Red and Black.

Tigers reserves won a 20-15 game with Stebelton hitting the net for 10 points.

SARASOTA, Fla., Jan. 21 — (UP) — Sammy Byrd of Birmingham, the one-time outfielder of the New York Yankees who now chases them in centerfield for the Rochester Red Wings, was a strong favorite to win the second annual National Baseball Players' golf tournament which began here today over the Bobby Jones course.

The regard in which Byrd is held was proved last night when, in the Calcutta pool auction, he brought $166 against $88 for the defending champion, Wesley Ferrell, ace right-hander of the Boston Red Sox.

About This And That In Many Sports

Too Many Good Shots

Circleville cagers ran into a barrage of baskets last night at Marysville. — Coach Jerry Kingsmore, it would seem, has a team that should go through the Central Buckeye race without much trouble, especially since Bob Forrest, Grandview's great forward, is through because of midyear graduation. * * *

Emery Club Goes On

Emery club cagers are still moving along although some dissension has apparently hit the ranks. — A couple of the boys claim a couple of others will not pass the pumpkin, but try to hog it for themselves. — The team is too good to let something like this sneak into the course of things. — Here's hoping the friction is patched up, and soon. * * *

How Come, Cleveland?

Intended to scribble this a few days ago, but just didn't. — The trade between Cleveland and St. Louis seems to be one of Hornsby's masterpieces. — How the Indians can expect to benefit is beyond the janitor. — Lyn Lary is a good shortstop, and Julius Solters is a better-than-average outfielder, but Ivy Paul Andrews has never shown he can pitch ball with Oral Hildebrand. — Lary will be serving his fourth American league club, New York, Boston, St. Louis and now Cleveland. — Joe Vosmik was a favorite in Cleveland, and fans, so we hear, are raising ned about the swap. * * *

Marietta Steps Out

Marietta college, 1935-36 Ohio conference cage titlist, will seek "name" schools for its schedule next year. — Frank L. Hayes, director of athletics, wants to play Ohio State, Pittsburgh, Notre Dame, Carnegie Tech, and West Virginia. — A brother of Carl Burger, Pickaway township coach, is a member of the Marietta squad. * * *

Argument for Maxie

A real argument for Max Rosenblum's basketball carnivals in the Cleveland auditorium is made on the fact that Western Reserve, which played Stanford recently in half of the evening's card, received more money as its share of the gate than was ever grossed in the Reserve gymnasium. * * *

CAN SOUTH GO GAME AT DIAMONDS?

WE ARE NOT told how bidding went. The final call was 5-Diamonds by South. The opening lead was the 4 of clubs. The inquirer suggested half a dozen ways of playing the hand, but each of them could be defeated by astute defense. We have to suggest a single method of play that will enable declarer to go game against any subsequent defense.

any variation of play that can affect final result. The five cards left in each hand will be as follows:

♠ A 6 4
♥ J 9
♦ K J 6 5
♣ A Q 10 7

The lead is in dummy. Declarer has no play that East and South hold the same numbers of spades and trumps. East now can end played or grand coup, with the loss of only two tricks in either event. For the first time a defender has a choice of alternative play.

Lead dummy's good Ace of hearts. East either may discard his good K of spades, or ruff the heart. Try both defenses. First have East discard his spade. Declarer will do likewise. Lead either a heart or club from dummy. East must ruff. Declarer must overruff. If East ruffs with either honor, declarer will make a small slam, giving East only one trump trick. The same is true if East ruffs low. Declarer will overruff, then lead either Q or 10, giving East one trump trick, but obliging the defender to lead up to a trump tenace, giving South the two remaining tricks. To win even two tricks East must ruff the Ace of hearts. Declarer must overruff, then give East a trick with the spade. East then will also obtain one trump trick. Game at diamonds cannot be prevented.

COUNCIL TO ISSUE $5,000 IN BONDS TO PAY FOR SEWER EXTENSIONS

$3,500 ASSIGNED TO ADD TO CITY STORM SYSTEM

Leist Told to Prepare to Seek $75,000 For Work on Disposal Plant

ROOF LEAK DISCUSSED

Railroads Come In For Their Share of Criticism

Legislation for a $5,000 bond issue, covering the city's share of storm and sanitary sewer extensions under WPA, was passed by councilmen Wednesday night.

Preliminary arrangements for the bond issue were started in council last December. The fund is divided $1,500 for sanitary extensions and $3,500 for storm sewer improvements. The sanitary extensions are listed as various places over the city while the storm sewer work includes largely the N. Pickaway street sewer. Interest on the bonds was listed at three and a half per cent.

Issue $75,000 Notes

Councilmen also instructed Carl C. Leist, solicitor, to take the necessary steps to issue notes in anticipation of the $75,000 sewerage system bonds. These notes will be sold by the mayor, finance committee of council and the auditor. Voters approved the bond issue for a sewerage disposal plant at the last election. Floyd Browne, Marion, O., engineer, employed by council to make preliminary surveys for the sewerage system and disposal plant, was not present at the meeting.

Two reports in council on repairs needed in the city were referred to the service director. Councilman Frank Marion said he had been informed the roof at Memorial Hall was leaking and should be repaired at once. Harry Steinhauser said W. Huston street was very rough and should be repaired. He recommended also the railroad company be requested to widen the crossing.

Councilman Ben Gordon asked if railroads were required to keep the street between their tracks in repair. He explained the E. Corwin street crossing on the Pennsylvania railroad was rough and should be improved. Officials of railroads have been asked to meet with council soon to discuss crossing repairs and signals, Carl C. Leist said.

BENOIT ADMITS KILLING OFFICER

Benoit drove away in the police car. An alarm already had been broadcast by Trooper Sam Senini, who had arrested Mike Delbert, believed to have been Benoit's accomplice in the robbery. Senini was fired on when he gave chase to the youthful slayer.

Benoit told the sheriff that he was aware that all highways were being watched because he heard the instructions on the radio in Hammond's car. He said he tried to travel on side roads, with which he was unfamiliar, but was trapped when he drove into a narrow, dead-end path. He jumped from the car and fled into the thick woods nearby.

Hide in Deserted Barn

He found a deserted barn about three miles from the scene of the slaying and hid there all day yesterday while posse searched the area. Last night he decided to take another chance of escape.

He went to the farmhouse of B. Balog, south of here, and asked for help in starting his car which he said had been stalled on a nearby road. Balog and his son offered to go with him in their small truck. As they started to leave, Benoit drew a gun, pointed it into Balog's ribs and said:

"I'm a gangster and have been for 5 years. You're going to drive me to Monroe."

Benoit forced the father and son into the truck. They drove off, with the gunman at the wheel. Benoit, however, apparently had not seen Anna Balog, 17, who was in the house. She rushed to a telephone and notified police. More than 50 patrol cars were ordered to patrol all highways.

Four officers encountered the Balog truck at an intersection. They ordered Benoit to surrender. When he hesitated, they fired one shot from a machine gun into the truck. Benoit then stepped out, his arms raised above his head. The troopers, Sheriff Bailey said, found guns in his possession. Questioned later, Benoit told police he did not think he had killed Hammond and thought that bandit car. They believe the car used by the bandits turned east on Route 22.

One of the robbers was described as about six feet tall and of slender build. The other was short and of medium build. Both were dark complexioned. Both were between 20 and 25 years of age.

The car used was a late model sedan or coach, Mason said, but he was unable to determine the make or the license number.

One "New" at Game

One told Mason he was "new at the game", but added "The other fellow is tough so don't fool around."

Donald Goodchild, 11, and his brother, John, 13, of 248 E. Franklin street, saw Mason run from the station to hall a passing car. They ran south on Washington street and notified J. C. Rader about the excitement at the station. He called police.

At the time the call was received at the police station all officers were out of the department. Councilmen Ben Gordon heard the police telephone ringing as he was leaving a council meeting.

been concentrated in the last 10 days.

Colder weather tonight or Friday is expected to relieve flood conditions.

A secondary rise in the upper Ohio river between Pittsburgh and Parkersburg, W. Va., started today after heavy rains had swollen the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers and other tributaries. Only at Wheeling, W. Va., was the river reported falling.

At Marietta, O., the river was at 35.9 feet, almost three feet over flood level — and was expected to go to 40.3 feet by Friday.

In the river metropolis of Cincinnati, the river reached a stage of 62.8 feet today and was rising two-tenths of a foot an hour. Flood stage is 52 feet. More than 500 emergency calls were handled by police during the night.

Cincinnati Crippled

Industrial concerns suffered the most damage in the Cincinnati area and about 1500 families evacuated their homes.

The Ohio towns of New Richmond, Neville and Moscow were inundated. All families either had moved out of their homes or had moved to second floors. Flood boats from Dayton and state highway trucks worked all night taking families from their homes.

The great flood walls on the Ohio and Scioto rivers at Portsmouth held against steadily increasing water pressure. The Scioto wall was reinforced by sandbags. The river stage at Portsmouth was 59.3 feet but the walls will hold out the water up to 62 feet.

More than 3,000 families would be driven out should the water spill over the levees.

Nine persons were dead and at least 19 were feared lost in snowdrifts today as a wave of arctic winter swept over the western states, damaging crops and sending temperatures to new lows.

Eighteen sheepherders were believed snowbound without food at Pleasant valley, Nevada. A state highway crew battled through huge snowdrifts in an attempt to break through to the marooned men, who, it was feared may be dying from starvation or from extreme cold. It was 22 below zero in that area.
